

Location Scouting

Picking a location for a photo shoot is one of the toughest challenges that you may face because things can, and will change. Several times we have had Brides choose a venue because of the gardens or because the flowers would fit with the colour schemes perfectly; only to come back in a year to find that gardens designs have changed or the climate or time of year dictates the backdrop. This is the time you will be glad you hired a professional. In samples below, the Bride chose this particular venue because of the gazebo and fantastic well manicured lawns, only to find nature had turn the luscious green lawns to a dull crusty wheat field. She was a real trooper and put her faith that we could make some improvements, 51 picture adjustments and a couple of days we feel that we met the challenge, but you be the judge.

Original Picture

Adjusted Picture

Original Picture 5 x 7

Adjusted Picture 5 x 7

To see the entire wedding pictures <http://www.gordevansphotography.com/wedding/ge201>
The adjusted Wedding Story Album at <http://gordevansphotography.com/samples/GE201WSB>

We always welcome your comments, please E-mail us at gord@gordevansphotography.com .

Thanks,
Gord